FOREWORD

SINCE THE FEELINGS AND NOBLEST
ASPIRATIONS OF A PEOPLE ARE EXPRESSED
IN THEIR ART, WE HAVE CHOSEN AMERICAN ART
AS THE THEME OF THIS VOLUME. INADEQUATELY AS IT HAS BEEN CARRIED OUT, WE HOPE THAT IT WILL AROUSE A DEEPER APPRECIATION AND UNDERSTANDING OF OUR NATION'S ART AND WILL STIMULATE A FULLER
DEVELOPMENT OF THAT ARTISTIC SENSE
NATIVE TO EVERY INDIVIDUAL.

RUDYARD KIPLING

When earth's last picture is painted, and the tubes are twisted and dried.

When the oldest colors have faded, and the youngest critic has died.

We shall rest, and, faith, we shall need it—lie down for an aeon or two.

Till the Master of all good workmen shall set us to work anew!

And those that were good will be happy: they shall sit in a golden chair:

They shall splash at a ten-league canvas with brushes of comets'
hair:

They shall find real saints to draw from—Magdalene, Peter, and Paul:

They shall work for an age at a sitting and never be tired at all!

And only the Master shall praise us, and only the Master shall blame:

And no one shall work for money, and no one shall work for fame:

But each for the joy of the working, and each, in his separate star,

Shall draw the Thing as he sees It for the God of Things as They Are!

The Greensboro College Creed

WE BELIEVE in being rather than in seeming; in the devotion to high ideals; in daring to do our duty as we understand it.

We believe in having an attentive eye, a listening ear, a busy brain, in keeping the mind clear and bright, filling it with wholesome thoughts of life; in losing ourselves in useful industry.

We believe in being worthy at all times; in having grim energy and resolute courage for the conquest of fear; in gaining confidence in our ability.

We believe in service, in doing kind deeds, thinking kind thoughts, in being strong, gentle, pure and good; steady, loyal, and enduring.

We believe in reverence for truth; humility; in great aspirations and high ambitions; in toiling ever upward.

We believe in cultivating the bright virtue of patriotism and the holy passion for friendship.

We believe in studying hard, thinking quietly, speaking gently; acting frankly; in listening to the winds, the trees, the stars, and the birds; to babes and sages with open hearts; we believe in being glad, in loving all, in hating none, in doing all bravely, bearing all cheerfully, awaiting all occasions, hurrying never.

We believe in striving to gain sound knowledge, not content to simply know, but determined to use knowledge for the highest purpose.

We believe in man and woman, in God's unending love, and in the future.

ROBERT F. NICHOLS

To you who so sincerely loved the class of nineteen-thirty when we were sophomores, we, the class of nineteen-thirty, now seniors, set aside this page in our book for you, as we have and always will reserve a place in our memories and hearts for the teacher whom we so sincerely love.

On the day you left, you said to us, "We have played along the shore of art and literature for a year now. I hope you have picked up a few shells to keep—but remember that the vast ocean of Truth lies before you and now you are ready to set sail." We have many shells for remembrance, and now that we are in reality ready to sail forth on the voyage of Life, we hold your memory and instruction as a guiding star—as a hand which points us onward and upward to the realization of our ideals.

ARTHUR HIBBETS
Mascot of Senior Class

A very popular and important member of the Senior class is its mascot, Arthur Hibbets. Arthur is often seen on the campus, in the dining room, and in the office with Misses Letha and Mary Brock. Sometimes he is also seen at orchestra rehearsal, where he plays his "horn and drum" and watches very closely his daddy's baton.

Arthur is jolly, good-natured, always ready to smile and to talk to the "college girls." The Seniors feel fortunate in having such a fine little fellow for their mascot and are wishing for him a long life with much success and happiness and are hoping he will always remember the class of '30.

JUDITH IRENE ALBERT, A.B.

SALEM, VA.

Irving Literary Society; Greenbrier College (1); School of Spoken English and Dramatic Art (2, 3); Dramatic Club (2, 3, 4); Raphael Art Club (2, 3, 4); President Raphael Art Club (3); Botany Club (2, 3); Spanish Club (3); Art Editor Echo (3); Echo Staff (4); Zoology Club (3, 4); House President Hudson Hall (3); Executive Council (3); Student Council (3, 4); Fire Lieutenant (4); International Relations Club (4); Register Inspector (3); College Marshal (4).

"Judy" is endowed with the "spark of eternal fire" possessed only by artists, and has the power to make beautiful everything around her.

Judith has good judgment and a cultured and refined manner with an element of reserve which goes for the making of a perfect gentlewoman.

Fine sensibilities, and a keen insight make her far above the average in scholastic ability, yet her common sense balances this and makes her the sort of a girl anyone would be proud to have as a friend. Those who know her best know how jolly she can be on occasion, and we know that some day a certain someone is going to be just as glad to call her his as we, the class of '30, are to call her ours.

MARY JANE ANDREWS, A.B.

INMAN, S. C.

Irving Literary Society; Young Harris College (1, 2); Zoology Club (3); Greensboro College Orchestra (3, 4); Life Service Band (3); Tinkers Club (3).

The "Ideal Girl" is the only way one could justify Mary Jane by description. There are so many adjectives that could be applied in painting a picture of her! First, she is gifted with that characteristic so greatly in demand—personality. She is "good looking," a ready sympathizer, a good listener, sincere in her work, and at the same time has all the fun that one could possibly want. As a matter of fact, if Buddy Rogers really expects to find his "Dream Girl," as he has listed her qualifications, he'd step right into luck if he should come on our campus and chance to see this particular person. "Jane Unknown" she is to him—however all of us at G. C. know her—and—"To know her is to love her."

Here's hoping that wherever her future leads her, she'll find as many friends as she's leaving back here. If she does, she'll surely have the kind of luck we're wishing for her, and will lead the happy life which she deserves.

VIRGINIA WHITLEY APPLEWHITE, A.B.
STANTONSBURG N. C.

Irvine Literary Society, Life Service Band (1), Hikers Club (1, 2); Spanish Club (2, 3, 4); Le Cercle Français (3, 4); Chaplain of Irvine Literary Society (3); Dramatic Club (3, 4); Class Basketball Team (3, 4); Critic of Irvine Literary Society (4); President of Spanish Club (4); College Marshal (4); Society Editor of Collegian (4); Fire Lieutenant (4); Class Secret (3, 4); First place winner in soccer (4); Inter-national Relations Club (4).

I ovable and sweet—yes—but that isn't all—just a moment. Here's a girl worth knowing just as enthusiastic in work as in play. True blue sincere, loyal—but how could words do justice to her charming personality, wit, and lovely ways? To meet her is to wish to be counted among her friends. Love her? Yes—we all do. Wait—one would not attempt to describe Virginia without saying she is very "cute." To those that know her, no other word could do justice to her personality.

Multiply all those things that go to make a good sport and the result is Virginia. She never turns traitor on field day, and is dependable in anything she attempts.

Here's wishing luck to her, no matter what field of endeavor she may enter and we are sure that success will attend her efforts.

CATHERINE LOUISE ATWELL, A.B.
CORNELIUS, N. C.

Living Literary Society; Davenport College (1, 2); Botany Club (3, 4); Zoology Club (4); Glee Club (3, 4); Life Service Band (3, 4); Y. W. C. A. Choir (3, 4); Le Cercle Français (3, 4).

Will you have a lullaby or an opera number? It really makes no particular difference since Louise is always ready with either. Another nice thing about her voice is that, even though you should call for an opera selection and she sang a lullaby, when she is finished you are fully convinced it was a lullaby that you wanted anyway.

Louise chose another school for her first two years of college but when she came to Greensboro College she found a place to fill and she has faithfully and efficiently filled it. There are many here that will remember Louise as a jolly good friend, for friendliness is one of her strong characteristics. At the same time she has remained loyal to her old friends of four years ago at Davenport.

Here's to you, Louise! Success and happiness will follow you wherever you go for you're the kind that makes a place for those things to live, as well as a place in your heart for all that is pure and noble.

ELSIE CHRISTINE BEAMAN, A.B.
SNOW HILL, N. C.

Living Literary Society; Life Service Band (1, 2, 3, 4); Botany Club (2, 3, 4); Zoology Club (2, 3, 4); International Relations Club (3, 4); Mathematics Club (2, 3, 4); Chairman of Program Committee of Mathematics Club (4); Echo Staff (4); Honor Society (3, 4); Delegate to Student Volunteer at Elon (1); Greensboro (4).

Endowed with the choicest of life's gifts—sincerity, frankness, and sweetness, we shall always remember Elsie as one of the most lovable members of our class.

Mother Nature chose to endow her with quick intellect as a tool for learning—"The only gem that does not decay is knowledge" is an adage which fits Elsie perfectly. She is a regular shark when it comes to math and the fact that she has been an honor student every year proves her ability in other fields.

Those of us who know her intimately know that she always takes her own time about everything, however, her own time must be the best time for she gets there just the same.

If you want anything done she is there to help; if you are looking for a good time she is always ready to join. What more could one ask? With her keen intellect and accommodating manner she is bound to succeed in whatever she undertakes.

ELEANOR MAE BEST, A.B.

FREMONT, N. C.

Living Literary Society; Secretary of Class (3); Mathematics Club (2, 3, 4); Der Deutscher Verein (2); Society Marshal (2); Society Censor (3); College Marshal (4); May Day Attendant (3); Vice-President Mathematics Club (4); International Relations Club (4).

What she was yesterday—she is today—and will be tomorrow. Attention folks! When Eleanor passes everyone gives a second glance, for with all her attractiveness she has the supreme gift of Clara Bow's "It." Her friendliness toward everybody, sincerity in everything and splendid character make Eleanor one of the most popular and best loved members of our class. She will always be loyal, gentle and cultured. Her daintiness and congenial nature go to make up her unique personality. To know her is to admire her. Eleanor's disposition is to be envied. She finds some good in everything and in everyone. We have never seen her downhearted. It is her policy to be happy, and we consider that it has been a great pleasure to have this cheerful, friendly little person in the class of '30. There is a thing about her that brings a smile to welcome her, a sigh when she departs, and that little thing about her has endeared her to our hearts.

PRESTINE BLAKENEY, A.B.
MONROE, N. C.

Irving Literary Society, Zoology Club (3); Home Economics Club (4); "G" Club (3, 4); Tennis Team (1, 4); First Place Winner (1); Hikers' Club (1, 2, 3); International Relations Club (4); Tennis Champion (1); University North Carolina Summer School 1927; N. C. C. W. Summer School 1929; Class Statistics (3).

"Gentlemen prefer blonds"—that is, we know of at least one who does. Perhaps that explains Pris' deep interest in Home Economics, and it might also have something to do with the "Frat" pin. We don't blame this certain gentleman but we do envy him. Could he have anything to do with her telephone calls?

Capable, reliable, energetic and friendly, with wit thrown in, combine to make her a combination of seriousness and fun—that's "Pris." She's always ready to laugh with you when you're glad, and sympathize when you're blue. But that's not all she can do. She's queen of athletics, and on the tennis court she reigns supreme. We predict that she will be a second Helen Wills some day.

Prestine is ever ready for fun and a good time, but when the time comes, she can readily adapt herself to any situation.

A student, a friend, and athlete too; what more do you want Pris to do?

Tennis rackets, telephone calls, Pilot Life.

"one of our modern maidens."

VIRGINIA PEARL BOND, A.B.

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

Living Literary Society, Davenport College (1); Spanish Club (2, 3); Zoology Club (3); Hikers' Club (2); Botany Club (2); N. C. C. W. Summer School 1926; International Relations Club (4).

Virginia is the kind of girl who can give her biographer much trouble since it is impossible, in the allotted space, to even sketch completely her character. As a friend and companion it would be hard to find a better one. She is sparkling, vivacious, and always ready for a good time. She entered G. C. her sophomore year and we regret that she wasn't with us the whole four years. With her high degree of intelligence and her excellent personality, we can predict nothing but a successful life. Democratic, industrious, conscientious, and gifted with ability, and yet vivacious and gay, spreading joy with her laugh, are only a few things we know about Virginia. Ever a friend, if once a friend, she has found a place in the hearts of all of us. We can imagine her in the future, doing anything from studying in "Gay Paree" to receiving the love of her "Prince Charming." And we wish for her, happiness always, for if ever anyone deserves it—Virginia does.

RUTH ETHEL BURRUS. A.B.
RUTHERFORD COLLEGE, N. C.

Emerson Literary Society; Weaver College (1); Rutherford College (2); Dramatic Club (3); Hikers' Club (3, 4); Zoology Club (3); Spanish Club (3, 4); Life Service Band (3, 4).

"I've got a last-go trade for you, can you trade?" And generally we can, for who doesn't often hear someone say, "I like Ruth." She says the cutest things I've ever heard." Because of this wit Ruth has become an outstanding figure on the campus. More than once some girl—blue, homesick or out-of-sorts, has gone to Ruth's room with, "Ruth, sing me some of those campmeeting songs." Then she, in a voice not at all bad, peals forth on "My Lord Delivered Daniel," accompanied by the gestures and voice of a true campmeeting "singing leader."

But Ruth is not at all one-sided because of her outstanding wit, and, in spite of the fact that she dotes on giving people the impression that she is quite dumb, she has plenty of sense on plenty of subjects.

If nothing happens to hinder her with this unique personality we shall all be disappointed if she doesn't bring honor to our class. So, taking all this into consideration, as one man we rise and shout, "Vive la Rutho."

*Books, last-go

ANNE MANGUM CATCHINGS, A.B.

JACKSON, MISS

Emerson Literary Society; Hikers' Club (1, 2); School of Music (1, 2, 3, 4); Der Deutscher Verein (1, 2); Mathematics Club (2, 3, 4); Experimenters' Club (2, 3, 4); Basketball Team (3, 4); Fire Lieutenant (4); Zoology Club (4); International Relations Club (4); Assistant Business Manager The College Mosaic (3); Presidents' Forum (4); President of Senior Class (4); Class Soccer (4); First place winner in Soccer (4); Author and Director of Class Stunt (1); First place winner in Basketball (3).

It's funny how hard it is to find just the right things to say about Anne. She has so many admirable traits and we wonder just how the gods could have found so many to combine. Lovable, charming, attractive, loyal, capable, talented—well, she is all of these plus a winning personality. A better girl could not have been chosen from the seniors for their leader. She is carefree enough not to let anything worry her and yet she understands her responsibility.

One could search for miles and miles and never find a better sport than Anne. She will try almost anything once, even to singing over the radio. No one can be blue with Anne around! With her outlook on life she is sure to come out on top.

EMMA FLORINE CORBELL, A.B.

SUNBURY, N. C.

Irving Literary Society; School of Spoken English and Dramatic Art (1, 2, 3, 4); Dramatic Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Vice-President of Dramatic Club (4); G. C. Players (4); Hikers' Club (1); Spanish Club (1, 2); Raphael Art Club (3); Botany Club (1); The Colleen Bessie Staff (4); Zoology Club (3); Class Soccer (3).

"Life is too important to take it seriously," expresses Florine's philosophy of life. for she is alert to appreciate and to enjoy every situation which she encounters. Her striking personality and cheerful disposition reflect culture and refinement which make her outstanding. Her frankness, sincerity and loveliness have acquired for Florine numerous friends.

Her ability in dramatics, as shown through her interpretation of Pierrette, will gain for her recognition behind the footlights on Broadway. In directing plays she has displayed capability, efficiency, reliability, and artistic touch.

Florine's leisure hours are spent in Stratford Weatherly Drug Store, or perhaps, she is found reminiscing upon Wreck Island, or the Perquimans River.

In her nature there is something of a dare-devil spirit: she is naughty but nice.

FRANCES ATHALIA COX, A.B.
JACKSONVILLE, N. C.

Emerson Literary Society; Emerson Marshal (2); Le Cercle Français (3); Spanish Club (2, 3); Class Basketball Team (3); Hikers' Club (1, 2); Botany Club (2).

There is nothing on earth that a normal girl dreads so much as a blond. Frances has a whiz to her swift arrow that entitles her to a place in the tournament. Here's hoping she wins! Beautiful eyes of darkest, deepest blue, under straight, black brows that give them a somewhat appealing look. She has all the sterling qualities that one could possibly desire, a genial disposition that we all envy, and varied abilities that we all admire. Frances is a conscientious worker and a diligent student. She is clever, cynical, and witty with a philosophical trend that will entertain men and women alike—the old as well as the young. We'd surely like to know where she gets all this personality. A little mischievous? Yes—but she can be serious. I'm telling you Frances knocks them for a goal. What difference does it make? Since life for her is a voyage of discovery. Her pep, high ideals, and amiable air are all contributed to her youth—youth—and the gladness of youth—exists for Frances in every phase of her life.

ANNIE ELIZABETH CROSS, A.B.

SUNBURY, N. C.

Irving Literary Society; Chairman of Class (1); School of Music (1); Basketball (1, 2, 3, 4); First place winner (1, 2, 3); "G" Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Hikers' Club (1); Mathematics Club (2, 3, 4); Program Chairman of Mathematics Club (2); Experimenters' Club (3, 4); Spanish Club (2, 3, 4); Budget Collector (4); Y. W. C. A. Cabinet (3); College Council (4); "Y" Store Manager (3); Assistant Business Manager of Echo (3); Delegate to Blue Ridge (2).

Glancing back over our college days our class could not find a truer or a sincerer friend than we have in "Lib." And blessed are those upon whom she bestows her friendship.

She is indeed very capable and when a task is given to her to accomplish one can rest assured that it will be done to the best of her ability and to the satisfaction of everyone.

"Lib's" unselfish nature and bigness of heart we all admire, and her disposition so sunny has won for her many a friend.

Besides possessing so many admirable traits she is interested in her work and has won honors in every phase of college activities.

A good sport, true blue, good natured—in fact, good all round—that's "Lib."

Mildred's unsophisticated wit, sunny smile and friendly disposition have won for her "Miss Popularity" on the campus for two consecutive years. Her school spirit, sincerity, and loyalty have made her outstanding. She is not only a good athlete but a rare sport in every situation. Kind, accommodating, and dependable, she has done much to make Greensboro College a pleasant place, and if her future can be judged by her past, we predict for Mildred a successful career in whatever field of work she may undertake.

Allow me to introduce you to Beck—one of our finest and sweetest, and one that the class of '30 will always be proud to claim. She is conscientious in her work and in her play, and always ready to help a friend. Beck is a good sport and takes a prominent part in athletics on the campus. If you doubt this, just watch her play basketball. Many nice things could be said about Beck, but this phrase alone expresses the thought of everyone: "She opened her mouth with wisdom and in her tongue was the law of kindness." If you are looking for a hard worker and a girl that is true blue, here she is. Surely she could never be accused of lack of enthusiasm and vivacity in regard not only to work and play but also in a certain young man. Her delight in hearing from Van is plainly seen in her beaming eyes. We wish for you the best of everything through life.

With the lovely face"*

Happy-go-lucky girl! Never a worry, never a care; just let it all go and it will all end well—this is Georgia's conception of life. She believes in living for today, tomorrow will take care of itself. She is ready for a good time—always, but back of her care-free attitude is a wealth of good sound reasoning and common sense.

There is a ray of sunshine to be found in the darkest places when Georgia is around. She possesses a wonderful personality and is always cheerful and gay. Also there lies much mischief behind her sparkling brown eyes. Jolly and merry describe our Georgia.

Georgia is a pal worth having because if it's fun you're up to she's with you; if you're down and out, she's the one to go to. She's a "rare good fellow" whether serious or gay. We all love her a lot and hope she won't ever forget us. Good luck to you, old girl!

"Pris" is rather a puzzle to the majority of us who wander about in a life of stern realities. To us the fairy-land with all its romantic glamour has faded and been transformed into a life of harsh materialism. Frances is yet the child of ideals and to her the life about her is painted in colors of "rose and gold." Soon there will come the time when the delightfully feminine, charmingly, indifferent, and very petite girl we know today has become the woman of sensible, practical, yet charming personality. Perhaps Frances isn't the ambitious scheming student ever grasping for the key of knowledge, but she is always alert for that necessary quality for which every woman strives, attractiveness both in personality and appearance and we feel that she has surely been successful in the attainment of that goal.

Margaret, a girl of many abilities, sometimes a friend, sometimes a student, often a pleasure chaser, always a lover of books. She is our sunshine; even on rainy days and blue Mondays she never fails to chase our blues away with her ever-ready original expressions. When you are down-hearted or sad, just go to Margaret. Sleeping is her chief amusement and procrastination her weakness—but what does that matter when her ability ranges all the way from scientific facts of interest to discussing most everything in present day literature? For Margaret reads the daily papers, peruses the best magazines and absorbs the material of numberless books. Added to her wisdom she has a winning disposition—a personality all her own which wins your heart. Her strong convictions, mischievous eyes, sincere spirit, frankness of manner, surprising ability will win for her a place in the world. She is a girl always hopeful and considerate—glad of life because it gives one a chance to love, work, and play.

EDENTON, N. C.

Irving Literary Society; Lonsburg College (1, 2); Zoology Club (3); Le Cerele Français (3, 4); Editor-in-Chief of The College Message (4); Author and Director of Class Stunt (4).

Helen is an efficient, intelligent, and cultured member of our class. Her eternal bigness of heart we all admire. Her willingness to lend a helping hand has won her many friends. Daring to stand by her opinions makes her admired. Helen is calm, courteous, and at all times to be depended upon for everything. She does numerous things along different lines and does them all well. As a freshman, we saw her with her music; as a senior, we hear the typewriter resounding those ideas which she gives us through The College Message.

Her leisure hours are equally divided between the library and shall we say, Stratford Weatherly? While in the library one is sure to find her reading either the New York Times or material on the Southern Industrial Revolution. In addition to the pleasures these hours afford, her course in theory in the department of physical education gives her equal delight.

Margaret works while she works and plays while she plays. This, with her charming disposition, probably accounts for her success in everything she attempts. Who could refrain from loving a person as sincere, lovable, intelligent, and true as Margaret? It seems that a certain young Tar Heel just can't.

Margaret is well-known for her amiable and pleasant disposition. She's a great friend to all, because if it's fun you're up to, she's with you, if you're down and out, she's the one to whom we go. She is attractive, sincere and always a real honest-to-goodness girl. By her outspoken nature and simplicity of manner, Margaret has won a host of friends. She has proved herself to be a good sport and a thoroughly capable student. We wish her much success as a school "marm." However, we fear she will not teach long, because . . . oh well, can't you guess? Anyway, we predict for this little girl a great future.

Joyce, a student, a leader, a lover, a friend—proof that a girl can be both attractive and capable. That she is congenial with everyone, happy and sympathetic in any situation, is evidenced by the numerous admirers her personality and charm of manner draw. By her diligent, sincere, and interested efforts she has proved a most valuable asset to the Y. W. C. A. An adequate appreciation of "Joe" is impossible for one to write, for in her are combined so many sterling qualities and there is nothing in which she does not excel. In her are found all things fair and all things worth while—ability, fairness, squareness, good common sense, fun, pep—all combined. She is a diligent worker—always eager to do her best—a sincere friend, a congenial and delightful companion. "Joe" is one of our outstanding music students and we feel sure she will succeed in this field. In short "Joe" is the kind of a girl of which we wish there were more. *"Sweet, true, and always kind,
A better pal no one would find."*

You can search the world over, but you will never find another like Venice. She is true-blue and we count it a privilege to have her as one of our friends. A sweeter girl cannot be found, and she is a friend worth having. Venice is a little girl, but, as you've often heard, the most valuable articles are wrapped in small packages.

Quiet, modest, and unassuming most nearly describe this little girl. She never sells for her real value until after she is known. She is never too serious to laugh and yet never too laughing to be serious. If you once gain her friendship, you have a friend that is not found in many, for when she loves, she loves with her whole heart, and is willing to make any necessary sacrifice for those whom she loves.

In perfect harmony with life's best gifts, she is attractive, sincere, and dependable. To play with, to cry with, to love—always a true-blue, honest-to-goodness friend—that's Venice!

A real student is quite an oddity these days, but a real student plus a personality is nothing less than a freak of a college campus. But every senior who knows "Whit" thinks she is quite the best sport, most human, and lovable of the college girls. "A's" and "A-pluses" are her specialty, but just what we call her love of "mystery picture shows" we don't know. At any rate, "Whit" finds time to "take in" the movies and do her work exceedingly well. College students might do well to learn her lesson of combining so successfully work and play. A vivacious, peppy, fun-loving girl, never forgetting that the first purpose of her student life is doing well her academic work, yet ever alert to the fact that recreation and amusement have the proper places in her schedule. More students of "Whit's" type and we'll closely approximate the ideal college student.

GREENVILLE, N. C.

Louisburg College (1, 2); Irving Literary Society (3, 4); Le Cercle Français (3, 4); Spanish Club (3); Zoology Club (3, 4); College Marshal (4).

You should meet her! As graceful and as slim as a sylph, she is a very striking girl, delicate-featured, softly-tinted, with an appealing charm about her that all but the stony-hearted few find hard to resist. One could not fail to be attracted by her deep set, gold-flecked brown eyes that sparkle with her smile which is so brilliant that it comes like a burst of sunshine. She leads an optimistic life that is spiced with love, novelty, flirtation, and imagination. Animation, intellect, charm, and loyalty go to make up her femininity. Doris is one of the most popular and fascinating girls in our class, with a glowing personality that combines both seriousness and fun. When Doris is around there is always happiness. She is a girl of good judgment, sound opinion, and intellect—a girl who exists only in novels, and in man's imagination. She is capable of a love that is composed of maternal tenderness, child-like inconsistency, torturing jealousy, and sublime unselfishness—and I wonder who will be the lucky man to comprehend a mixture like this.

If you hear a merry little giggle and a drawing voice say "H—ey there," you may be quite sure it is Nona. She has a cheery word for every one and radiates sunshine wherever she goes. No matter what is said, Nona always has a witty and ready answer.

Back of the wit, there is a head full of seriousness and common sense. It seems that Nona was just endowed with that gift of knowledge for she studies very little, yet makes excellent grades.

Her loyalty and sincerity make for her many friends, and if one would gaze into her serious blue eyes he would know immediately that here was an understanding friend. Nona has many friends, for 'phone calls and specials from a tall Mr. Mac constitute a part of her everyday life.

Nona is a very precious little thing. Just remember—"Things of the greatest value are done up in smallest packages."

Knowing Nona as we do, we should predict for her a future of love and happiness—no matter what course she pursues.

MOORESVILLE, N. C.

Irving Literary Society; Spanish Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Glee Club (3).

Speaking of ability, of good hard common sense, of comradeship, of fun and foolishness—well, this is Hovis. Because of her personality, her unselfishness and sincerity, she has a great influence over her fellow comrades and she has proved a friend true and lasting. She loves and is indeed loved by all. Whatever she does or whomever she meets, be it singing or talking to Charlie, we know the job will be a success. Then, too, Hovis belongs to the type that is just naturally original. By her original wit and humor she breaks the monotony of the duller days on the campus. Her fun and mischief go a long way in making us gay and happy. The cuteness of her face, the charm and gentleness of her character have won for her many admirers. To see her returning from a stroll down the street with a mischievous smile on her face means, without doubt, another boy has lost his heart to her. Truly her winning ways are certain to make for her a host of friends in years to come and she is sure to be a success in life.

To know Maxine is to love her, and those who don't know her are anxious to become acquainted with one whose charm has become firmly established. She possesses an even temper, genial nature, naturalness, good judgment and individuality of expression, which combine into a charming personality.

"Max" has leadership ability which has brought her to the foreground on many occasions, especially in her guidance of the Emersons through the rush of Decision Day, and the regular work of the year, culminating in the reception on Valentine Day, when she proved a gracious and captivating hostess to the hundreds of guests who attended. All in all, Maxine is the kind of a girl not often found, and one whose friendship is cherished or sought after by all.

A mischievous twinkle of the eye, a bit of seriousness, an artistic appreciation of life, dependability, capability, and keen intelligence, characterize Mary Leila. Since variety is the spice of her life, these qualities are sprinkled or showered with the most sparkling wit—inevitable result: a glorious future. Is she cheerful? She wears a "rainbow" round her shoulder. Is she kind-hearted? She'd even be responsible for getting her neighbors to breakfast. Sympathetic, understanding, accommodating, she is the central figure in excitement. Skilled in the graces of conversation, brimming over with new ideas, a surging tide of energy, a dash of happy recklessness, and a heart of rarest gold—the Mary Leila we know.

Emerson Literary Society, Davenport College (1, 2), Botany Club (1); Zoology Club (3, 4); Le Cercle Français (3, 4); Life Service Band (3, 4).

"Lib" has won a place in the hearts of those she came in contact with since she came to G. C. She is sincere, earnest, and always ready to lend a helping hand when help is needed. She not only has the power of making friends, she has the power of keeping them.

She appears to be dignified upon first acquaintance but after the real "Lib" is learned we find behind her dignity, wit, originality and mischief. No matter whatever the occasion, she is always ready to join in whole-heartedly. As a sport she ranks foremost, always ready for a good time, never allowing pleasure to interfere with her work.

When it comes to scholastic abilities, "Lib" is all there. She has only to sit down, wrap her legs around the cable of profound thought, sink into an abyss of reflection and then the monster knowledge is conquered.

Her very name Hunt implies her motto: "To seek the things that are worth while in life." With this as her guiding light she is bound to succeed wherever she goes.

"Koonce" hasn't been with us but two years of her college life, but during this time she has won the love of every girl who ever knew her. She is ever ready and willing to undertake a difficult task which she always sees through. "Koonce" is a girl that is clever, frank, sincere, with a sympathetic nature, plus friendliness—a girl with a heart of gold. Best of all, she is ready and willing at all times to help others. Here is one who has gained our true respect and admiration by her gentle character. As she has capability, we are predicting for her success in whatever she undertakes. She is a girl of common sense, culture and refinement. Dependable, unselfish, calm and just Frances is the friend one often reads about but seldom finds. One can easily account for her many admirers as she possesses sparkling big blue eyes and fair complexion. A good sport plus a true friend gives as a result a pal worth having.

There is a finality about "Kat" which makes everyone respect her, for when she says she will do a thing, you may depend on it, and when she says she won't, that is the end of it. She is constant—true from day to day. If she is your friend today, you have the assurance that she will be tomorrow. That's why everybody likes and admires her.

"Kat" is not only a star mathematician with a head full of sense, but an attractive looking girl with a personality which makes friends for her wherever she goes. A cheerful disposition contributes much to Kathryn's popularity, and her readiness to join a ten o'clock feast is well known on her end of the hall, for it is among her best friends that she is the most natural and jolliest. Those who know her best love her best. All in all, "Kat" is a wonderful girl, a friend much to be desired and a true understander of human nature.

A mere slip of a girl—winsome, delicate intuition, nimbly moving hands, indefinable charm—Nellie. A mirror in which is glorified, magnified and deified the true make-up of womanhood is Mary Gilbert. She is always her friend's philosopher and guide in the time of need. After having known her, one is convinced that she is made of the choicest things of life. Perhaps the secret of Gilbert's long list of friends lies in the unselfish way she gives of herself. "Whatever thy hands find to do, do it with all thy might," may be said as her motto. A pleasing personality and unusual capabilities will insure success for her in any field. Mary Gilbert is the one we can depend on. We wish for her luck and much of it throughout the coming years. Because of her sincerity, individuality and honesty, she has "hitched her wagon to a star" far above the average, and her sunny disposition will help her win success.

C. Players (4).

Who can bear more than her share of the load? Who is one of the big aids in the dramatic club? Lazelle, of course. She can do any phase of dramatic work equally well; and anything else she tries. That's a bit unusual, too. Maybe that's the big reason we like her so much, 'cause she is unusual.

Sincere, sympathetic, steady and humorous, she has made many friends at G. C. She is true-blue, and as a sportsman she cannot be surpassed. Her outstanding activity is archery. Her ability as an excellent athlete testifies to her popularity.

Lazelle's greatest ambition is to be a playwright. We do not have to worry about her success. She will have it anyhow. Luck and best wishes to you always from the class of '30.

Amiable to all about her, kind and considerate of others—a friend worth having—that's "Cat." A truly good sport, full of pep, musical and rhythmical, and artistic to the finger tips—such are the phrases that describe her so vividly. Beneath this friendly exterior lies a modest, sincere girl whom only her most intimate friends know and she is one of the few who possesses the requisites for an all-round girl. Her kind-heartedness, united with true unselfish friendliness, has won for her a multitude of friends. "Cat" is the efficient, intelligent and brilliant member of our class. She is talented in everything that we have given her to do so far—from the trifles of our class to the really big things.

Irving Literary Society; Hikers' Club (1, 2, 3); Mathematics Club (3, 4); Life Service Band (1, 2); Sorores Togatae (2, 3, 4); Secretary and Treasurer of Sorores Togatae (4).

Even-tempered, quiet, unassuming—that's Louise. "To know her is to love her," but getting to know her—there's the rub. She is so quiet that it is hard to realize that she is around. She is so reserved that one has to associate with her a long time to find out what she is really like. But once that reserve is broken and she has accepted you as a friend you find her one worth having. Louise has the ability to adapt herself to every mood. If you're in the dumps, Louise's quiet sympathy is soothing to a troubled soul; if you're ready for a good time she's right with you. She never forces her opinions where they aren't wanted, but when occasion demands she shows that she has the ability to back up what she thinks.

Louise is always in earnest about whatever she does, but there's plenty of fun in her make-up—

Cute little smile—laugh that tinkles—hair that glows—curls in ringlets—eyes that lure with a light caress—that's Irene. Maybe I'm wasting my time because one can see at a glance what Irene looks like, however, one cannot see at a glance just what she is. She loves and is loved by all. To all she has proved a friend, true and lasting. Whatever she undertakes we know will be a success—in other words, she is dependable. Irene has many admirable traits and perhaps the best one is that she is a good sport. She believes in hanging black crepe over sorrow and worries. Why worry about today when tomorrow brings another day? She lives for the present only, and all the fun she finds coming or going.

To anyone who knows Irene very well it is hard to vision her in the future as living anywhere but St. Louis. 'Tis her one great and only weakness. Success to you, Irene!

There are so many words which are essential in characterizing Ollie that it is hard to know which to choose. Dependable, straightforward, resourceful, intelligent, sincere, are some of them. There are few girls in whose nature is combined seriousness with a lively appreciation of real fun, but Ollie is one of those few. She is friendly, but more than that she is a real friend—one who can be relied on at all times. She is always ready with sound advice when it is asked for, but she has that rare quality of knowing when to speak and when to keep silent.

Ollie stands in with the pros to the extent of honor grades, but nobody would accuse her of being a bookworm. She has the knack of learning without having to dig.

In short, Ollie is a hundred per cent fine girl—one anybody would be proud to know.

A combination of sparkling wit, mischievous brown eyes, intelligence, dependability, striking personality, and cheerfulness make Mary Leckie attractive. Her disposition is such that it prompts her to be thoughtful, generous, and lovable towards all of those with whom she is associated. As a student she reflects those qualities which make her well-rounded and interesting. She is a rare good sport, daring and unafraid. Her independence and even temperament make her unique. Mary Leckie is a friend that one finds only once in a life time. Unselfishness, reliability, and sincerity characterize her nature. Her interests are not limited to campus activities for she displays equal enthusiasm in international affairs.

She uses profitably all of her spare time in sewing, sleeping, going to the picture show or to town, and visiting the inmates. Her chief delight is in the recognition as an assistant in the department of science.

What the class of 1931 lost, 1930 gained, when "Bee" decided to be smart and do four years work in three. As a classmate, we find her a true friend, hard worker, and dandy good sport. We are happy and proud to be able to say she belongs to us. Oh! There are any number of nice things we could say about her and they would still be inadequate, for just words won't say all we'd like them to at times like this. 'Tisn't everybody that can come from the West, live in Virginia, come to school in North Carolina, and have a decided "interest" in Texas, and still be so loyal to friends everywhere.

So, "Bee," when you find, somewhere in this big old world, that place that you alone can fill, may you bring much joy into the lives of those with whom you are associated. Our best wish for you is that success may always attend your undertakings and that you may always find happiness—and we are sure you will.

Charm, grace, attractiveness—all these go to make up Dot. Anyone deserves praise who can be an honor student, a dependable friend, and yet find time for pleasure and books. Graceful as a spray of clematis, her feet are unconditionally gay. Her interests are centered in science, which is evidenced by her animated passion for chemical research, and she dreams of an M. D. degree. Although wistful, reserved, individual, unassuming in manner, Dot has a way of winning friends. In the same moment she can be both coolly distant and radiate a friendly greeting—but always captivating. There is none more efficient and dependable than the Dot whom we all love so.

Irving Literary Society; Louisburg College (1, 2); Der Deutscher Verein (3, 4); Zoölogy Club (3); Le Cercle Français (4); International Relations Club (4); Vice-President Fitzgerald Hall (4); Honor Society (4).

An ounce of seriousness, a grain of humor, enter into the make-up of a girl who is sincere, big-hearted, and lovable. The interest which Doris has in all of those activities which surround her is sufficient to prove her capabilities. In the scholastic realm she has exhibited a keen intellect and a noble character. Her consideration of those with whom she comes in contact shows her a loyal and steadfast friend.

In her nature there is an element of reserve which is limited only to a few, and it is this tendency which has gained for her admiration and respect. Her ability and efficiency in those things which she attempts has shown her to be dependable and trustworthy.

It is not surprising that Doris gets a rush through the mail, for her pharmaceutical relationships, and her aptitude in writing letters merit this popularity, which she receives. When she is not engaged in this activity, Doris can be found buried in the depths of some novel or "Screen Magazine."

CANDLER, N. C.

Emerson Literary Society; Davenport College (1, 2); Hikers' Club (3, 4); Zoology Club (3); Life Service Band (3); Class Soccer Team (3, 4); International Relations Club (4).

Pansy's chief characteristic is her freeheartedness. A knock resounds without the door, a head is poked in and a sorrowful voice asks the loan of something—anything from a frivolous envelope to the embarrassing request of a dime. And does Pansy refuse? Not at all. She smiles mysteriously, teases a little, but in the end the owner of the knock and distracted voice leaves with the thing asked for, minus the down-and-out look, but with a larger spot of love in her heart for Pansy.

Sympathy is practiced to the nth degree by Pansy. Somehow, she naturally falls into the changing moods of her associates. She naturally understands without much explanation, which is very convenient for those who are at such times wordless.

Unlike most of us she has no desire to teach, but instead dreams of becoming an attorney some day in the future. When we hear of her as such we will all think, she has attained the best, because she gave the best.

Merry, witty, and good humored—that's Georgia. Independent, self-expressive, highly creative, and very determined. A strong will power that will always enable her to pull herself out of trying circumstances. Georgia has a big heart and a congenial nature,—the result being a host of friends. She never misses any form of social life, and were it not for her presence, I dare say, such would be a "flop." Vocationally, she has particular liking for music and romance language. We predict for Georgia a very happy and successful future. For what else could life hold in store for a girl with such a bright disposition and winning ways? To her the world is sunny and full of joy, but it is because she has made it so. Scattering happiness is an art which she has perfected, and happiness must indeed be a perfume which one cannot give to others without getting a few drops herself, for Georgia is happiness personified.

A combination of brown hair, brown eyes that sparkle happiness and radiate love from their depths, a temperament akin to the literary, and a disposition which looks into the future with faith and optimism—friendly, capable, dependable, conscientious, enthusiastic, attractive—that's Adelaide. She has a gift for doing things, and knows the art of using her time to the best advantage. A girl of fine intelligence; qualities of persistence that mark an earnest and thorough student. Half serious, half gay; sometimes interestingly discussing Shakespeare; then again starting out for that weekly date; or returning from one of her numerous jaunts to town—or a dozen other things. Though rather elusive, not that she is incapable of being understood, but there are times when she does the unexpected and unlooked for, she has a way of winning friends. We rest assured that she will achieve the best things of this world and that she in return will "give to the world the best that she has."

To know Lavinia would be to find that she has the ready wit, and subtle charm desired by many and possessed by few. Lavinia is just the kind of a girl one is always glad to have around—one who can be gay or serious according to your mood.

Frankness, sincerity, ability, good sportsmanship, and true friendship, make a sum total of her qualities of character. Charming, gentle, dignified and capable, she knows the art of using her time to best advantage by dividing it between her studies and her social activities.

That's "Cat"—tall, stately, striking, with eyes of blue, and light, golden, wavy hair—that natural wave which her classmates envy so.

An ideal girl—the girl you can't help admiring. A personality that grows on you from the day you meet her. A sweet disposition—making friends and holding them through kindly deeds and gentle manners. Dependability, efficiency,—these have won for "Cat" a place in the hearts of her classmates. Talent? Yes. A musician—one whose musical technique is unexcelled and of whom the class of '30 is proud. A most brilliant and intelligent character, excelling in scholastic ability, is "Cat." There's a certain dignity—yet—does she like fun? I should say. She puts much into life and really gets something out of it. Her road to success is surely paved.

Half serious, half gay, eyes with a lurking mischief in their depths; a smile ready and cheerful—that's Janie. She is human enough to seek advice yet wise enough to take only the good. In this way she has learned much. Considerate, helpful, original, competent and loyal are all words that fit Janie. The magic wand was generous in giving Janie the two qualities desired by many, but possessed by merely a few—natural wit and humor. Always ready to go somewhere, always optimistic and cheerful in the darkest times, always ready to be a help to anyone in trouble, an inspiration to her associates and friends—this is Janie.

To see Franny, happy, laughing, apparently carefree, active in many branches of student life on the campus, one might not realize what a depth there is to her nature, and how sincerely she can sympathize with anyone in trouble. She is truly a girl of understanding, and a friend at all times.

Frances is always getting the best out of life because she puts her best into it. No matter what she does, she does it wholeheartedly and graciously. Nothing is too much trouble for her, as her record shows, for she is just as willing to do little things to help as big ones.

Those who are so fortunate as to be her friends know that Franny is a good sport, no matter what the occasion. Generosity and thoughtfulness are combined with an attractive manner and undeniable charm which make this sprightly little girl one of the best loved members of the class of '30.

Mary Agnes has been given the honor of being our prettiest girl, but behind this outward beauty is a wealth of good, sound reasoning and common sense. She possesses the qualities of poise, graciousness of manner, and a sunny disposition. She was made to love and to be loved.

Kindness and amiability are characteristics of Mary Agnes. Once a friend, always a friend. She is always smiling and is endowed with the true spirit of optimism. These qualities, combined with others, make her one of the most popular members of our class.

With her magnetic personality, she has won for herself a host of friends of both sexes. We are certain that Mary Agnes will be successful in anything from teaching school to making a home, and know that life will give her the happiness that she deserves.

"Still waters run deep." This may be well applied to Tennille, for she is a girl of sterling qualities. There are many people who think she is very quiet, but we who know her will surely deny it. She is as good a sport and friend as can be found anywhere.

"Neal" wins the love and admiration of all who come in contact with her. Her quiet dignity, her sweet and unselfish disposition, and her noble ideals combine to make a character which is indeed worthy of a true girl. To be associated with her means to love her. She is the kind of a girl you like better every time you see her. Very reserved at first, but when you know her you are astonished to find that she has been your friend all along.

In spite of all of her good qualities "Neal" has one great weakness in the superlative degree—sleep—sleep—sleep. Nevertheless we know that she will make a wide-awake teacher.

Class Prophecy

ONE afternoon in the spring of 1945, a friend and I were in Washington at the time the cherry trees were in blossom along the Potomac. In the grass were fallen petals, and the profusion of delicate pink blooms on the trees was reflected in the still blue of the winding river. This charming picture impressed us very much, as we were both deeply interested in art—especially the pictures nature paints. While revelling in the beauty of this scene, we suggested visiting the Corcoran Art Gallery, as there had recently been added to the old treasures numerous pictures by modern painters. Accordingly, the next afternoon found us entering the treasure house of America's art, and we immediately sought out the new pictures.

Imagine our surprise when our eyes met a picture painted by one of our classmates at G. C.! It seemed so long since we had all been together there in 1930—fifteen years! Where was each member of our class? What was she doing? Recalling to mind the good times we had had while in college seemed to make the picture before us more vivid. It was a portrait of a lovely lady in a dinner gown—we recognized her as a leader of society in our nation's capital, and none other than Mary Agnes Williams, painted by Gertrude Clay!

The next was also of an old schoolmate! We began to wonder how many of them we should see! A piece of sculpture unveiled after the Olympic games proved to be the figure of Mildred Cross, manager of the Olympics, congratulating Rebecca Currie, a successful athlete. This certainly followed up their records at G. C.

We stepped on a few feet farther and saw Congress in session. Presiding was none other than Margaret Towe, Speaker of the House. The floor was occupied by two ladies who seemed to be engaged in a heated debate. Mary Leckie Read, the representative from Virginia, was arguing for a bill for the appropriation of two million dollars for the relief of retired ditch diggers, and Elizabeth Cross, of North Carolina, was leading the opposition.

Hanging by the scene of Congress was a picture of the first woman President of the United States, Nellie McKeel, holding a cabinet meeting—the first authorized picture of the administration. At her right was Janie Weaver, Secretary of State, still planning things, and the Secretary of the Treasury, Frances Wilkins, was, we felt sure, admirably fitted for her position after handling so much money at G. C. The country was in a wild state of enthusiasm over its women officials, and the success of the campaign was largely due to Mary Leila Honiker, who was still "politicing."

Were all the pictures to be of our classmates at G. C.? We became more and more astonished as we glanced around us and recognized in each one familiar faces. Our excitement reached a high pitch—we could hardly see them fast enough.

Two successful figures greeted our eyes as we saw a sketch of a chemical laboratory where Dot Robbins and Mary Cooper Hooker were working. We had read recently of their success in isolating the germ of indigestion, and this had placed them in the foremost rank of America's chemists. As we thought of science we spoke of Lavinia Veal, biologist, who was debating whether to take her Ph.D. in her own or her husband's name.

The peaceful scene which came next was something of a shock to us, for in a cozy little room sat Frances Cox with a cat, both of them watching a kettle which was singing cheerily on the hearth. The picture was so natural it almost seemed as if she herself were sitting there.

"Florine Corbell, producer of plays light and fantastic," was the name of the next picture. It showed our old friend Florine in conference with Lazelle Mitchell foremost dramatist, evidently discussing some new play.

So many of the pictures had been calm scenes that the next attracted our attention immediately. It was court in session. I recognized four faces of school friends. The judge was none other than Beatrice Rimel, and very stern and vindictive she looked. Irene Nance, lawyer, was pleading the case of Nona Herring, who had been named the corespondent in a breach of promise suit. The plaintiff, Venice Gaddy, was on the stand. The tense atmosphere of the trial was ably portrayed by the artist.

The next scene was a mud hut with a grass roof. In the background a tropical sun was blazing over a dense jungle. Before the hut was a lady, surrounded by a group of little African children gazing at her with intent faces. The lady was Katheryn McCall, missionary, and near her was Louise Atwell, who carried the natives the message of salvation with her evangelistic songs.

The next scene was in the same class. Elsie Beaman, Mary Gilbert McKenzie and Elizabeth Hunt were social service workers in the slums of one of our big cities. This picture of them was taken at the settlement house, which was used as headquarters for the welfare department.

Here was a picture labelled the North Carolina S. P. C. A. What did that mean? There was Doris Rogers, presiding, and Margaret Elliott and Margaret Farrar with an intent look on their faces. Oh! The Society of Prevention of Cruelty to Animals! And these were the state officers!

A spic and span office was the next picture. It had over the desk, "Albert and Flippin, Decorator and Demonstrator." Judith was designing model homes and Joyce was executing them. They both were well-fitted for this occupation, for their own homes were models.

The scene shifted to Greensboro, and a landscape in water color was a terrace with little tables under colorful canopies. The gay dresses of the ladies and the soft green grass on the lawn made a most charming picture. Mrs. Taylor (Maxine Holmes) and Mrs. Wyrick (Prestine Blakeney) were joint hostesses at tea.

Another Greensboro scene greeted our astonished gaze. It was an airplane view of the new Greensboro University, taken by Virginia Bond, famous aviatrix. The old institution had grown so much in fifteen years we hardly recognized it. There was the cupola, though, the same as ever, and Kat Leggett was up there setting up astronomical apparatus. Under the picture were the names of the officers and heads of departments: Mary Kellah Ouzts, dean; Adelaide Turnage, professor of journalism; Ruth Burrus, assistant to Dr. Webb, head of the department of English; Louise Moss, professor of Latin; Tennille Williams, professor of poetry, and Josephine Frutchey, head of the piano normal department.

A pencil portrait of Anne Catchings, socialist and strike leader, was a perfect likeness. She was still lovely and looked even more influential than in her school days.

A group of well dressed, fashionable women met our view. Mannequins for an exclusive Parisian shop they were, and among the group we recognized Frances Dorsette and Doris Hardee.

Catherine Wallace, director of the Juilliard Music Foundation and Catherine Moore, famous pianist, were posing together for the next picture. They both looked their part, with their long curling locks of hair.

Eleanor Best and Whit Gillam had fulfilled their ambition to be great mathematicians. They were in a session of the American Mathematical Association, and were learnedly expounding their theory of irrelevance, which they asserted would displace the illogical theory of relativity, held by Einstein.

The interior of a recording factory revealed Hovis Hipps about to make a yodelling record. She had acquired great fame after the waning popularity of Jimmie Rogers and Riley Puckett.

Helen Evans, editor, and Pansy Rutherford, novelist, had both developed unusual theories of writing. Helen believed that criticism was deadly and concentrated all her efforts on counteracting the effect of H. L. Mencken's ideas in the South. Pansy was especially interested in the sociological aspects of the law, and wrote chiefly of crime and punishment.

Virginia Hord, costumer, was designing gowns for the popular movie star, Georgia Davis. The picture before us was one of Miss Davis in a stunning dinner gown with wrap of ermine.

Was that all? Breathless we gazed around us as if we had been around the world and seen everything and everybody in that short time. No, here were two more. The ward of a big hospital was the next scene and Frances Koonce and Mary Jane Andrews were nurses. The patient, a handsome young man, appeared very much in love—but with which one? Dr. Ollie Nichols, standing over the bed, seemed to take in the situation at a glance, and knew that the young man was only lovesick and did not need surgical attention.

And now the last—a dancing studio, run by Virginia Applewhite and Georgia Sherrill. They guaranteed to teach everyone to dance, no matter what their age or aptitude.

We glanced around and saw that the setting sun was streaking the corridors of the gallery with crimson. Just then an attendant came up and told us it was time for visitors to leave.

As we walked arm in arm down the broad steps, we gazed at the wonder of the sunset. Pictures painted by nature's fingers and those painted by human hand were strongly contrasted in our minds. Those we had just seen were of compelling interest to us, for we loved our friends and enjoyed seeing them again, but as the glory of the sunset stole over our souls, and as we comprehended its grandeur, we realized that no matter how long pictures on a canvas would endure, nature, the greatest painter, made pictures which were everlasting, giving joy and inspiration through countless ages.

The Honor Society

The Honor Society—the distant dream of every Freshman, the star toward which the Sophomores struggle, the reward for the fortunate Juniors, and the pride of many Seniors—it is the Phi Beta Kappa of Greensboro College. It is composed of Juniors and Seniors only; its membership varies from year to year, according to the number of students with sufficiently high academic standing. At present the society is interested in becoming connected with a national organization and steps have been taken toward the movement.

Der Deutscher Verein

To be studying or to have studied the German language is the requirement for membership in Der Deutscher Verein, which is composed mostly of students in the department; however, "once a member, always a member." Under the able leadership of Dr. Lahser a number of most interesting meetings have been held this year. These meetings are held monthly and consist, besides the business section, of a program made up of music, poems, stories, and lectures relating to Germany, which is followed by a short social period.

Spanish Club

The purpose of the Spanish Club is to create and maintain a lively interest in the language, literature, and customs of Spain and Spanish-America. Sociability is stimulated, too, sometimes by the solution of Spanish riddles and cross-word puzzles. Pronunciation is improved by singing the club song, Christmas carols, and other Spanish songs. Sometimes a play is staged, usually a short comedy, which is always received enthusiastically. The lives of the great Spanish writers are also studied.

Le Cercle Francais

Le Cercle Francais has as its aim the development of the members' knowledge of modern French. Its membership is made up of students of French who have had at least two college courses in that language.

The programs of the club are devoted mainly to talks on and discussions of French customs of today, French games and songs tending to increase the usable vocabulary of the members, and other interesting phases of French life.

Zoology Club

The Zoology Club is one of the largest and most interesting of all the clubs. The membership is limited to the members in the Department of Zoology. The club is wide-awake and active in the discovery of facts relating to matters of vital importance. At each regular monthly meeting some outside speaker, usually one of the city's physicians and specialists, is invited to address the club upon some subject of current interest. The year's activities usually culminate with an annual picnic.

Botany Club

The pride of the department—the Botany Club. A finer organization cannot be found on the campus. All the advanced students in the department. Freshmen with required academic standing, and others who have proved themselves sufficiently interested, compose the club's membership. The club meets monthly and at each of these meetings some branch of botany is discussed by an outside person, an authority in that particular branch. During the past year the club has sponsored and financed a landscape gardening project—the planting of shrubbery around Hudson Hall.

International Relations Club

This is the youngest club on the campus, initiated by the History Department with the aid of the Carnegie Foundation. Its membership is made up of those girls who are interested in keeping up with international affairs and problems, and who are willing to read daily some newspaper or periodical. It holds bi-monthly meetings at which time an authority on international questions is secured as a speaker. The outstanding event of the year was the address on "Present Machinery for Preventing War," by Sir Herbert Ames.

Experimenters' Club

The Experimenters' Club constitutes a group of advanced students in the Department of Chemistry and Physics interested in scientific research and experiment. From time to time experiments are performed in the laboratory and occasionally a research problem is conducted. Its members are particularly interested in the activities of the general scientific world and a close check is kept on current events of that nature. At each monthly meeting a review is given of the leading scientific periodicals.

O tempore' O mores' At all times, everywhere, Latin has been the keynote of culture and learning. The Sorores Togatae represent a group of girls, who are seeking the fundamentals of education through the study of ancient classical authors. The object of the club is research and socialization. The old Latin customs are frequently discussed and reviewed. The Sorores Togatae endeavor to uphold the highest standards of the organization of all phases of work and life in general.

Home Economics Club

The Home Economics Club is an organization which includes every student in the department. The aim of its program is to arouse interest in the varied fields open to Home Economics students. When an opportunity is presented, valuable lectures and demonstrations are attended by the club. Outstanding among the projects which are carried out is the selection of furnishings for the dining room. Several articles are chosen each year to be donated to the department.

Life Service Band

The Life Service Band is a band of girls who are interested in humanity and in serving humanity either with part time or whole time service. Membership is unlimited. Student programs are usually presented at the weekly Sunday night meetings, but an occasional speaker is brought in. It sponsors morning watch, which is held each morning immediately after breakfast. It functions not alone for the good of its members, but for the good of unfortunate ones at holiday seasons.

Raphael Art Club

On our campus the Art Department is continuously developing and broadening in its scope; there is an organization whose membership consists of the art students possessing a keen interest in the fine arts. The Raphael Art Club was organized with Miss Landrum as sponsor during the fall of 1927, and it was named for Raphael the Italian artist, whose masterpieces are studied. The art club has as its purpose the creation of an appreciation for art and culture in our college.

Fire Department

The loud clanging of a bell breaks the deep silence of the night. The scuffle and scramble of some, and the unconscious groping of others for bath-robes and wet towels, is accompanied by excited chatter or sleepy yawns. Turning on lights and pulling down windows, the girls file out to the instructions of the trusty lieutenants, who are carrying out the orders of their chief. After answering roll call, the time is negligible before pajamas are nestling against warm sheets again and pillows are hearing confidential snores.

The College Message

The College Message is the college magazine which is published once a month by the Irving and the Emerson societies. Hence, it is a literary magazine containing stories, plays, poems, book reviews, articles on college problems and a special humor section. Its purpose is to give the college group an interesting bit of reading material and to discover the ability of various girls in literary work by endeavoring to awaken dormant capabilities. It is always open to and welcomes any contributions made by the students.

Its mailing list includes a large number of alumnae and outside colleges as well as students. The college is enriched and benefited by each issue of its Message.

The Collegian

The Collegian is the college newspaper edited twice a month by a very capable staff. It has the distinction of belonging to the North Carolina Press Association, and twice a year delegates attend its meetings, coming into contact with other editors and their problems, and forming valuable associations.

The paper is thoroughly representative of the students. It is through this means that they are able to express their opinions of ideas in a tangible manner. In addition to editorials and interesting student items, it contains a full account of all the news events and activities which take place on the campus, social and club news, as well as a number of student jokes. The college alumnae also find a keen interest in the column set aside for alumnae news. The staff obtains excellent training in newspaper work, and a valuable business knowledge through the solicitation of advertisements from various establishments in the city. Its increasing mailing list assures The Collegian of its evident popularity outside as well as in the college.

"G" Club

Is it not an honor to be the possessor of a "G"? 'Tis a symbol of many weary miles of hiking, of many mornings of disturbed slumber and of many rough battles on the tennis and basketball courts, on the soccer field—but is it not worth all this? Underlying all these "hardships" we find loyalty, earnestness and good sportsmanship. "G" Club membership is based on points—a thing which is the goal of every person who is athletically inclined.

Basketball

LOUISE TATE
Captain of Winning Team

Basketball is without doubt the most hotly-contested sport on the campus, for each class tries hard to outdo the other. The Freshmen come from high school, strong in their desire to overthrow the team who holds the cup. The "bloody Sophs" determine not to let the new comers outplay them. The Juniors are a determined bunch of players too. Some might say that the Seniors are too dignified to play basketball, but that is not always true. They still have the strong class spirit, and put up a good fight.

On November 7, 1929, the Freshmen and Seniors met for the preliminary game. The Seniors played a good game, but the result was a victory for the Freshmen. The Juniors forfeited their place to the Freshmen, so they played on Field Day. At 8:45, November 9, 1929, the Freshmen and Sophomores met beneath flying colors. It was a hard-fought game with a final score of 26-19 in favor of the Sophomores.

Soccer

MARGARET TOWE
Captain of Winning Team

Although of recent appearance on our campus, soccer is rapidly gaining popularity as a major sport, and is justifying its existence by the large number of enthusiasts who are becoming more interested in the game from one Field Day to another. The swiftness of this sport requires not only skill and speed but endurance, and ability in "taking the ball down" is necessary to a good game.

The Sophs held the title of champions from last year, so in exciting preliminaries the entrant for Field Day was decided. The Seniors won the right to play, so on November 9, 1929, sister classes met on the field. The result was a surprise to many, for the seniors won with a score of 2-1.

Tennis

PRESTINE BLAKENEY
Champion

It is easy to see that much interest and hard work have been expended on tennis this year. Proof of this may be found in the hotly-contested game played Field Day, in which the Seniors, represented by Margaret Towe and Prestine Blakeney, and the Sophomores, represented by Ruth Davis and Marion Erwin, were participants. The Seniors were winners with a score of 7-5 and 6-3. Thus they became champions because the Juniors and Freshmen had been eliminated in preliminaries.

Much interest was also shown in the tennis singles contest. This was between Ruth Davis, Sophomore, and Prestine Blakeney, Senior. Blakeney won by the score of 6-4.

ANNE HINKLE
Highest Scorer

The dash, relay, pole vault, broad and high jump, walking for speed, basketball throw, horseshoe pitching, archery, and bonario are all things which stimulate action. Great interest is aroused by watching the girls take part in each event. Much skill and competition was also shown. Anne Hinkle was first place winner in dash. Whisnant, Moores, Self, Lambeth also won. Louise Thompson won first place in broad jump. Gertrude Clay won first place in high jump. In horseshoe pitching the Freshmen were found making some good throws which brought them victory over the Sophomores, who showed marked ability. Elizabeth Cross won first place in basketball throw. Bernice Hooper won first place in pole vaulting. Archery and bonario are other new events. It is hard for us to get into these with the interest of the older events, but Fannie House Scoggin, who won first place in archery, and Annie John Williams, who won first place in bonario, proved them to be interesting sports.

May Day, 1929

A herald raised a shining bugle and blew a few clear, silvery notes and a silence fell over the gay assembly. The courtly groups of fair attendants whispered excitedly among themselves and the tall, handsome prince glanced eagerly through the trees for a glimpse of his lady, the Queen. At a distance was heard the clip of a horse's hoof upon a stone, then the crack of a driver's whip and the crunch of carriage wheels upon the gravel road. The Queen was coming!

Prancing slowly down the roadway, two pure-white horses were drawing a shining black coach. The driver, a tall, pleasant-faced "darker," neatly dressed in black and white livery, pulled in the reins as he approached the waiting court. The fair young Queen smiled graciously at the Prince, who took her hand as she stepped from the carriage. Followed by two tiny pages who held her lacy train, she walked slowly toward her throne. Suddenly an arch of fragrant crimson roses was flung over her head, a tribute of homage to the Queen of the May!

May Day Court

A soft May breeze whispering softly through the trees and the throaty trill of a bird's song were the only sounds that broke the stillness as the Queen took her place before the throne. Around her stood her Maid of Honor and ladies-in-waiting, tall and flower-like in their delicately-tinted dresses. When their beautiful Queen was seated before them the Court began its entertainment for her pleasure. Willowy girls in long, ruffled dresses tripped before her, each bearing an arch of snow-white roses, and began dancing, gracefully swaying to the rhythm of distant music.

A minuet with fans followed. Girls in crisp organdies of pale gold, orchid, soft pink, and green moved through slow steps, opening and shutting their fans with a motion as graceful as a butterfly fluttering its wings in the sunshine.

May Day, 1929

The Queen smiled delightedly as eleven little picaninies, snickering bashfully, sauntered before her and began jigging in true Southern fashion. Their kinky little heads bobbed back and forth as they went through their steps. Then, abashed at the applause of the audience, they rolled their eyes comically, turned to their heels and fled, amid the laughter of the assembly.

The Virginia Reel was the next dance performed for her Majesty's pleasure. The gay courtiers with powdered wigs were attired in shimmering white satin and creamy lace collars, while their partners, the ladies, wore long, ruffled dresses. Skipping lightly through their steps and bowing low to each other, they brought the dance to a triumphant end.

The Victoria minuet which followed held the audience in fascination by its slow, dreamy rhythm. The intricate steps were performed with such ease by the handsome men and beautiful ladies that a burst of applause greeted its close.

Then it was that the Queen rose, gracious and stately before her people, and made her awards. With her own hand she presented tall, silver cups for teams excelling above all others in athletic achievement and to favored individuals she gave letters and stars.

Then came the Maypole Dance, the crowning performance of the day. Two tall poles, gaily decked with bright flowers and streaming ribbons, were surrounded by girls who joyfully danced around each other, weaving a ribboned mat around the pole. At last, triumphant, they abandoned their sport and danced away.

Dramatic Club

The Dramatic Club's membership is made up of all students registered in the Dramatic Department and a limited number of others who may be elected to membership because of outstanding talent. Meetings are held once a month. The Greensboro College Players is the honor division of the club and must be made through attainment. Each season a series of plays is presented publicly to which season tickets are sold. This season the series of plays included "Wedding Bells," three-act comedy by Salisbury Fields; "Once There Was a Princess," three-act comedy by Juliet Willour Thompkins; two one-act plays "The Flying Prince," by Peggy Wood, and "The Maker of Dreams," by Oliphant Down; "Twelfth Night," by William Shakespeare, "Auntie and the Man," three-act comedy by Bernard Shaw. All scenery and many of the costumes and properties are constructed by our members in our own laboratory.

The Y. W. C. A. Choir is a recent but very important organization on the campus. Its most important work is the part it plays in the vesper services held each week. The organization adds a great deal of interest to the program. The members of this choir are girls who voluntarily give their services to the musical part of the program.

Students' A B C's

(We recommend that this be sent to all Freshmen with the handbook and application for gym costume.)

- A—Apples, a most unpalatable breakfast dish, generally served cold with bacon.
- B—Breakfast, the least enthusiastic organization on the campus.
- C—Cuts. Given for sickness, but used for sleeping.
- D—Dilemma, the rare condition of being caught slipping a book from the library.
- E—Education. That mental state supposedly attained by daily contact with classes.
- F—Failure, that grim specter that stalks the campus at exam time.
- G—“Greensboro College Girls Don't—,” the Freshman's rule of etiquette.
- H—Him, that mystical somebody that we all secretly long for.
- I—Infirmary, a cold white place, where pink pills, guaranteed to cure all ills, are obtained.
- J—Joy, a state of happiness to be entirely forgotten on entering college.
- K—Kitchenette, a place where the members of the council curl their hair.

- L—Library, the meeting place of the chewing gum experts.
- M—Money, the thing we write home for.
- N—Nod, a form of amusement frequently employed to pass away time while in class.
- O—Optimism, the state of mind least often experienced by students.
- P—Pull, a sublime assurance that the teacher likes you.
- Q—Quizzes, always given by the faculty the day after the day before.
- R—Rush, a practice used by two opposing literary societies and denied by both.
- S—Sunday morning, the time spent in hopefully looking for rain.
- T—Term papers, those 2,000 word bug bears due twice a year.
- U—Ugly, the way the girls look at Sunday morning breakfast.
- V—Vacant, the state of one's mind when a teacher asks a question.
- W—“Verb.” Dr. Lahser's pronunciation of verb.
- X—A mathematical term of which little is known, but of which much has been written.
- Y—Yearning, a vague, uneasy feeling experienced by love-sick girls.
- Z—Zero, practically the only mark given by teachers. This mark entitles pupils to membership in a society to which almost all school girls belong.

Can You Feature—

- Dr. Webb on time for his 8:30?
- Dr. Ayers eating unscrapped bananas?
- Mrs. Alley at breakfast before the doors open?
- Mr. Watson late?
- Dr. Ginnings without a ready joke?
- Miss Sample not making costumes?
- Mr. Alexander not telephoning?
- 100 per cent attendance at chapel?

Our dream girl is veiled in the fog of the entire class.

Mary: "I have a cold or something in my head."

Peggy: "A cold undoubtedly."

Statistics say that 65% of the college girls pet—wonder what the other 35% call it?

Ruth B.: "I'm something of a mind-reader—I can tell at a glance just what a person is thinking of me."

Pansy R.: "But don't you find it embarrassing?"

Sees all, knows all—the Student Council.

When Miss Ricketts catches you coming in after 10:30. "be nonchalant Light a Murad."

When you're lonely during study hour. "be popular—play a saxophone."

"To see them is to buy them"—girls spring shopping.

On exams. "What a whale of a difference a few sense make."

When your box is empty on Tuesday when restrictions come out. "Man, it's a grand and glorious feeling."

"Have you a little inferiority complex?" Just look around you.

On exams—"If your best friend won't tell you, why should I?"

Nancy: "Got a sweetheart yet, Josie?"
Josie: "Yes, and he is a regular gentleman."

Nancy: "You don't say so?"
Josie: "Yes, he took me to a restaurant last night and poured his tea into his saucer to cool it; but he didn't blow it like common people do, he fanned it with his hat."

Becky: "Did Freddy show any boldness when he was out with you in his car?"

I aura Mae: "Heavens no! I had to turn off the switch myself and tell him there was something wrong!"

Millions More

Each year since the introduction of Vicks VapoRub, more and more people have given up the old-fashioned way of "dosing" colds and turned to this modern external method. Today the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

stop "dosing"
COLDS

The ever-growing demand for this modern method of treating colds is shown in the familiar Vicks slogan Made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly," later raised to "21 Million," these figures are again being changed as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

It Happens

THAT we are truly thankful for many things. Our task is over, and as we lay aside our pens, we have the satisfaction that we have tried to do our best. If you, critical reader, are pleased and this book has shown a tendency to carry you back to the memorable days at G. C., then we of the management are well pleased and thankful—as our purpose has been accomplished. If, however, this book has fallen short in your estimation, we are truly sorry, but we can only offer suggestions—that you either get in touch with some reliable old-paper dealer, or start a fire.

THE 1930 ECHO STAFF.

Acknowledgments

IN the publication of this book we wish to acknowledge the kindness of Huntley-Stockton-Hill Co., West End Hose Co., Nor Bud Hosiery Shop, Mangel's, Morrison-Neese Furniture Co., Greensboro Drug Store, Vanstory Clothing Co., and of Mesdames S. B. Turrentine and W. B. Ross.

We wish to thank all those who have helped make this book possible, those in our college and out. And especially do we thank the Observer Printing House, Jahn and Ollier Engraving Co., and The Flynt Studios for their helpful suggestions and sympathetic coöperation.
